

As long as the liquid level is un-even, the system is working and drawing a negative vacuum as it should